

Software Engineering Intern

Hey there - we're Draftbit (www.draftbit.com) and our goal is to make it easier for everyone to build, launch, and iterate on mobile apps. And do it without writing code, unless you want to. While we're a relatively new company, our vision is to make building great looking, high quality mobile apps as easy as (or easier than?!) launching a website is now. And by doing so, we hope to democratize software development, allowing anyone to turn their idea into reality. Obviously this isn't an easy undertaking, so we're looking for people to help us!

We're based in Chicago and backed by world-class investors (including Y Combinator).

// About The Position: //

This is an opportunity to work on a small, startup team focused on quickly iterating on our platform. We're looking for a someone who can step in and learn quickly, and who isnt afraid of the startup environment. Since we're a small team, you'll get exposure to all elements of our stack. We're building Draftbit with a combination of Javascript, React, React Native, ReasonML, Node, Hapi, Postgres, GraphQL, Apollo, Heroku, AWS, and more.

From a day-to-day perspective, you'll work with our engineering and product teams in our 2-week sprint process, and you'll have full access to everyone on the team if you need help or want to ask questions.

Over the course of the semester, we'll also have you work on a specific product, feature, or project that we'll define together with the goal of finding a project you can use as part of your portfolio for future opportunities.

// What we're looking for: //

- Comfort and excitement about working in a startup environment.
- Interest in what we're building. Every member of our team uses the platform, brings new ideas to the table, and works on the entire product platform. We want people who bring new ideas to the table and care about what they are building.
- Proactivity and independence. You're able to take an idea and run with it, rather than just following instructions.

// Additional Details: //

This position is based at our office in the River North neighborhood of Chicago, IL during the semester.

// Interested? //

Please apply through the program and if you have questions about our company or the role, reach out to talent@draftbit.com.

Thank you!